Statement

The meeting of the Standing Ministerial Committee for Economic Co-operation of the Non-aligned Countries was held in Bali, Indonesia during May 10—13, 1993.

The Meeting covered various aspects of economic co-operation, in particular the relaunching of the North-South dialogue, promotion of South-South Co-operation and the role of the United Nations in International Development Co-operation.

On the question of North-South Co-operation the meeting sought to identify areas of common interest on which rational and productive negotiations could be conducted. These included international financial mechanisms, external debt, international trade and commodities, science and technology and environment and development.

The Meeting also committed Non-aligned Countries to further strengthening South-South Co-operation taking advantage of the comparative advantages available within the South, in particular, in facing the problems of external debt, economic development and population. Various on-going co-operation measures in the fields of science and technology, economic co-operation, regional trade were also sought to be further strengthened.

The Meeting also stressed the importance and pivotal role of the UN in furthering international economic development.

The Meeting took the following three decisions on specific issues:

(i) It was decided to recommend that the Chairman of the NAM should undertake further consultations with other Heads of States/Governments to determine the timing and modalities for a special summit devoted to economic and social development and international co-operation.

(ii) It was decided that the Chairman of the Non-aligned Movement should undertake further consultations on the selection of members of a proposed ad hoc advisory group of eminent experts on development issues.

(iii) It was also decided to hold further consultations on a proposal negotiated by the Government of Papua New Guinea for the UN to commission a comprehensive, systematic and thorough study of opportunity and participation with particular reference to the economies of developing countries.

As a follow-up to the meeting of the Standing Ministerial Committee the following other meetings have been organised:

(i) NAM Experts' Group Meeting on Population held in Bali, Indonesia from July 18—21, 1993.

(ii) NAM Experts' Group Meeting on Development Schemes to be held in Jakarta from September 13—16, 1993.

(iii) Meeting of Food and Agriculture Ministers of NAM countries in Indonesia in October, 1993.

(iv) Meeting of Population Ministers of NAM countries in November, 1993.

Government of India has actively participated in the follow-up activities of the SMC to promote the objectives of the meeting.
